

DENIES HE WAS A JESUIT

New York, Jan. 25.—David Hillhouse Buel, former Jesuit educator, once head of Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., in a bitter attack on two members of the order to which he formerly belonged, today denied he was a Jesuit at the time he married Miss Katherine Frances Powers.

The controversy between Buel and leaders of the Jesuit order has aroused members of the Catholic church throughout the East.

Buel's denial that he was a Jesuit at the time of his marriage was made in a letter sent to the United Press through F. H. Rogers of Cambridge, Mass. He declared he was in good standing, and no charges had been preferred against him when, July 12, 1912, he resigned from the Society of Jesus by serving "proper notice to that effect on the superiors of the society."

"The uncalled and unnecessary criticism of the writer given to reporters by the Jesuit Gasson of Boston," continues Buel, "and of the Jesuit Duarte, vice president of Georgetown University, is so unusual a departure from the Jesuit methods of secrecy and concealment in such matters as to suggest they have been prompted by some personal reason."

Buel then cites various cases of men, who, he says, withdrew from the Jesuit Society and either entered other faiths or took up educational work, and who, he says, were never publicly criticised by the members of the faith.

ALL INJURED IN WRECKS WILL LIVE

Mail train No. 56 of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, due in Chicago at 7 a. m., was derailed today one mile west of Fall River, Wis.

Patrick McBride, engineer, and John Butch, fireman, were injured and are in the hospital at Columbus, Wis. Passengers and mail were transferred to another train, which reached Chicago at noon.

All of the twenty-two persons hurt in the wreck of the Illinois Central are today recovering from their injuries.

Mrs. Lucille Hawkins, who was reported dying by the newspapers, is doing well at the Provident Hospital. Mrs. Hawkins was crushed under the car. Two of her ribs were broken and her spinal column was injured.

Frank J. Ryan, the Hearst-Harrison candidate for speaker of the House of Representatives, suffered a broken leg. He is in no danger of losing his life.

Rep. E. D. Shurtleff, former speaker, usually referred to as the "man who put Lorimer over," and Harry Woods, secretary of state-elect, suffered minor injuries.

Illinois Central stock fell off 5 points on the market yesterday, and there are indications of a further drop.

The fall was caused by a confirmation of the rumor that the I. C. dividends were to be cut almost in half.
